Mobile City Guide for the Berlinale at: berlinale.unlike.net

To further improve the services offered for accredited Berlinale guests and visitors, the Festival is collaborating on a pilot project with unlike.net Mobile City Guide.

At berlinale.unlike.net, you'll find not only the official Berlinale programme, venues, and selected events, but also extensive, well-presented recommendations for restaurants, bars, clubs, shops, and more.

To ensure variety during your stay, Mobile City Guide also provides you with an interesting selection of galleries, museums, wellness spots, and other sights.

With the aid of berlinale.unlike.net's innovative navigation and organisational tools, you can get your bearings and create your own personalized schedule for your stay in Berlin.

All content at berlinale.unlike.net is optimised for reception on modern mobile devices. This means you can access all the important dates and locations related to the Berlinale whenever you like, even while you're on the go.

More details and the latest news from the unlike editorial team round off the offer at berlinale.unlike.net. Under the heading "25hrs", personalities - such as Dieter Kosslick, Emily Atef, and Daniel Brühl - give you their personal tips for Berlin. Under "guides", you'll find interviews with Festival photographer Ali Ghandtschi or designer Paul Snowden, who created this year's Berlinale poster.

This innovative pilot project is supported by the Berlinale's official partners, L'ORÉAL PARIS and VANITY FAIR.
