The Berlin International Film Festival mourns Mareike Carrière

German actress Mareike Carrière, well-known for countless appearances in film and television, has died. Before the Berlinale moved to Potsdamer Platz, she had, among other things, hosted the festival's Opening Gala in the Zoo Palast. In recent years the Berlinale was always pleased to welcome her as a guest on the Red Carpet. "With Mareike Carrière's death we lose one of the most loyal friends of the Berlinale," says Festival Director Dieter Kosslick.
