Berlinale Talents 2019: Take a Deep Breath and Fail Better!

The programme is set – and yet everything’s still open. That’s not a contradiction: the approximately 100 events at Berlinale Talents are the result of a dialogue between the 250 Talents, the festival’s filmmakers, guests from the film industry, and the local Berlin audience – as well as the unique cultural and social perspectives they all bring with them. This year’s theme, “Mistakes”, is not about the flops, failures, and fumbles of the film world, but primarily about honest conversations and the resulting impulse for change in the cultural sector and in ourselves.

The Public Talks: Charlotte Rampling, André Téchiné, the International Jury, and Other Prominent Guests

The Talents network is pulsating and a total of 20 renowned alumni are returning as guests, including the Golden Bear winner Adina Pintilie and the directors David Lowery, Guy Nattiv, Teona Strugar Mitevska, and many more. In the programme, they stand side by side with prominent guests from the Berlinale programme, such as the recipient of this year’s Honorary Golden Bear, Charlotte Rampling, as well as the Competition directors André Téchiné and Nadav Lapid. Roberto Saviano, whose novel was the basis of Claudio Giovannesi’s Competition entry La paranza dei bambini (Piranhas) will join Berlinale Talents for a rare public talk. Members of the International Jury will open the public programme on Sunday with a demonstration of true honesty: the talk “around the kitchen table” of HAU1 will be devoted to their favourite mistakes and the improvements they would like to see in the film world. Open dialogue will also be the focus when Tendo Nagenda, VP of Original Film at Netflix, discusses the streaming platform and the kinds of stories, formats and audiences he is on the lookout for with a large group of Talents.

Never a Mistake: Collaboration, Diversity, Gender Equality, Respect

Films are the result of the interaction of many people. Creatives who take this into account are increasingly relying on low hierarchies and non-violent communication. A strong voice in the adult industry, Erika Lust confronts the androcentric space of pornography and mass media to ask new questions about the space of social responsibility in filmmaking. The Live World Building Workshop is also about working with others on an equal footing – and about utopias. Together with the audience, experts including the production designer Alex McDowell and the political activist General Jeff (the “Mayor of Skid Row”) will playfully rethink mistakes of our recent past. Their goal is a better future – and a fascinating tool for developing stories. Changes of perspective will also be up for debate as emerging filmmakers grapple with issues related to the cinematic representation of Africa from both internal and external points of view.

Always a Mistake: Avoiding Lateral Thinking

For one week, the interaction of the trades at Berlinale Talents, ranging from conceptualisation to post-production and distribution, will once again be shown from a practical angle. Together with philosopher and film critic Dana Linssen, the documentary filmmakers Jan Soldat and Manuel Abramovich will explore art of sensitively conducted film dialogues about taboo topics. Also on hand will be the prop and model maker Simon Weisse from Berlin-Neukölln (the creator of miniatures for Wes Anderson), the sound designer Peter Albrechtsen, and the foley artist Heikki Kossi (The Happiest Day in the Life of Olli Mäki) – specialists who will join in the discussion of “Mistakes” by revealing exactly where the devil lurks in the details. In addition to post-production and its technical pitfalls, which are only increasing in the digital age, the programme will include more discussions of innovative storytelling and distribution models. For example, the Talents alumni Bass Breche and Amin Dora from Lebanon will offer a case study of their international award-winning interactive web series – and also touch on issues of freedom and censorship on the internet.

The Festival Director Dieter Kosslick established Berlinale Talents in 2003 under the name of Berlinale Talent Campus. “It was our objective to build an international network for rising talent. At Berlinale Talents, emerging filmmakers have the chance to make new connections, learn from experienced filmmakers and exchange ideas. I am delighted that Talents alumni have realised so many successful projects over the years and that they are helping to shape the international film landscape,” comments Dieter Kosslick.

Today’s initiative comprises nearly 8,000 alumni from all over the world and includes seven annual Talents International initiatives, which are held in collaboration with film institutions in Buenos Aires, Durban, Guadalajara, Sarajevo, Beirut, Tokyo and Rio de Janeiro.

Berlinale Talents is an initiative of the Berlin International Film Festival, a business division of Kulturveranstaltungen des Bundes in Berlin GmbH, and is supported by the Federal Government Commissioner for Culture and the Media, Robert Bosch Stiftung, Medienboard Berlin-Brandenburg, Creative Europe - MEDIA Programme of the European Union, the German Federal Foreign Office and the German Federal Film Board.
